Attorney of the Department of Justice

Mr McBlair was appointed to the De-partment of Justice under the Roose-velt-Bonaparte regime. While there he and Miss Key were married, he believ-ing that his position was permanent. Former President Roosevelt took a deep interest in them, and promoted Mr. Mc Blair in order that the match might take place. Then he was dismissed. Now Mr. McBlair is making a strenuous effort to be taken back. He shows letters from Secretary Bonaparte commending him for his services, and Mr. McBlair says that he has every reason to believe that his services were satis-factory, and yet he was turned out of the Government last Fall with the statement that his services were not satisfactory. The McBlairs are now reduced to straits, it is said, and Mrs. McBlair is making every effort to have President Taft receive her, that she may lay her husband's case before him. If Mr. McDonald McBlair is as brilliant and as efficient an attorney as he would lead people to believe from his statement of the work that he did in the Department of Justice, he certainly ought to be able to do better than get a paltry $2,000 salary under the United States Government. That is one of the very serious reasons why it is unwise for men and women who really want to be anything to ever take a position unmany more dollars and cents will be forthcoming about 15 days later.
